ENGL 603: Bibliography and Literary Research helps students build a foundation for their career as researchers. This course introduces graduate students to analytical and descriptive bibliography, that is, the study of how the texts we read are made. Drawing on print and digital resources, students will learn how to effectively find, evaluate, and analyze primary and secondary sources germane to their research. Students will be exposed to the infrastructure of scholarly research and publishing. In Spring 2016, students will have the opportunity to take advantage of Shakespeare's First Folio visit to learn firsthand about public humanities.
